

What are some facts that call Hinduism a scientific religion?

First of all I would like to clarify that Hinduism is not a religion, it is a 'Dharam', humanitarian values, a way of living, how living beings should live in a civilized society.

Now, I would like to present who are Hindus.

Hindus don't know how they are Hindus.

None of the Hindus opted to choose Hinduism, everybody born Hindu.

Hinduism is nothing else than secularism.

Hinduism is related to natural justice.

In the history of mankind, people in India saw the worst situations for them, time and again. Many of them converted, forcefully to accept different religions. Still, Hinduism flourish fabulously, for humanitarian values can't be dismissed.

The most of the intelligent and honest people in the world accept Hinduism as a natural way of living, enjoying natural justice.

Americans have included a lot of things in their dictionary, defined, refined and purified by saintly bodies in India.

Everything in Hinduism is included after proven correct scientifically and spiritually.

Science and spiritually are one and the same thing, for both are meant to find out ultimate truth.

Spirituality is far more powerful than science and the most of the saintly bodies in India discovered, by spiritual powers, a lot of things leading to ultimate truth.

Hinduism is a scientific religion on grounds:

1. It is not a religion, it is way of living.
2. Hindus don't stuck to a definite theory, not proven by scientific facts.
3. Earlier Hindus, it is said, used to eat meat, but later on they rejected eating it by looking its ill effects.
4. Hindus are not stuck to a single book and also it was not advised by ancient teachers. We follow the good things from Krishna and not the bad things, if the Shiva advocates to follow.
5. Hinduism is a continues process of reforms and amendments to the best levels.
6. Hinduism is a 'Dharam', which works on the basis of universal brotherhood, natural justice, secularism, world peace and help to the weaker sections.
7. A follower of Hinduism does not require to read the Geeta, the Ramayana or anything else, but he must know about humanitarian values and the scientists and science can do the same job.
8. Hinduism is based on continued mental exercises. It is the mind, which makes the way for everything.
9. Hinduism does not allow you following anyone blindly.
